So, what we can know is reality - being - and being exists in many ways. We know by our senses - color, sound, flavor, hot/cold and wet/dry, odor. We also know the synthesis we make of these qualities: our imagination. Finally, we know the intelligible form - what something is. Our knowledge of the world around us comes to us primarily by means of our senses, but we must use our mind in conjunction with our senses to know the world around us intelligently.
